The Pandemic Response Accountability Committee (PRAC) was created in the CARES Act to support and coordinate independent oversight of more than $5 trillion in pandemic relief spending and provide transparency into how relief was spent. Housed within the Council of the Inspectors General on Integrity and Efficiency, the PRAC collaborates with 20 federal Offices of Inspectors General to ensure the effective and efficient use of taxpayer funds in agencies' response to pandemic-related public health and economic challenges. The PRAC's interactive website, PandemicOversight.gov, provides unparalleled transparency into pandemic spending.

With core values of objectivity, integrity, and collaboration, the PRAC facilitates its mission of fostering sound stewardship of taxpayer funds by promoting transparency; collaborating across the oversight community; holding wrongdoers accountable; and using data to detect and prevent fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement of pandemic relief spending.

The PRAC's innovative and groundbreaking oversight efforts have transformed how independent oversight is conducted; improved pandemic response programs; identified billions of dollars in potential cost savings; and been widely praised by high-level Executive Branch officials, senior Members of Congress, state and local leaders, and non-government stakeholders.
